SUNK—SMALL POX—EARTHQUAKE—THE REVOLU-TIONISTS AT MAZATLAN, MEXICO, ETC.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10, 1853. The steamship Daniel Webster, from San Juan, Nicaragua, has also arrived at this port, bringing three hundred passengers, $90,000 in gold dust on freight, and a considerable amount in the hands of passengers.

Her dates from California are the same as those received by the Philadelphia.

It was the steamer Winfield Scott, and not the Golden Gate, that had not been heard of as having arrived at Panama when the Philadelphia left Aspinwall.

The Daniel Webster announces the arrival of the Golden Gate at Panama, on the 28th ult., with six hundred passengers, and one million seven hundred thousand dollars in treasure. The steamship Northern Light was to leave San Juan on the 4th inst., with over three hundred passengers, and a large amount of gold, for New York. The ship Aberdeen, Captain Knapp, from New York, August 10, was run into near San Francisco by a French The former vessel bfiged and sunk. Her cargo was totally lost. The steamers J. Bragdon and Camanche came in collision on the 5th January, near Benecia, when the latter sunk in fifteen feet of water, and ten lives were lost, in cluding two ladies.

An earthquake had been experienced at Los Angelos, but no serious damage was done. The small pox was raging fatally in Calaveras county.

Major Beal, U. S. Indian Agent, had returned.

The number of passengers brought down to Panama by the several steamers was about 1,000.

A battle had occurred at Mazatlan, Mexico, between the overnment troops and the National Guard, in which the ormer were defeated.

The British ship-of-war Amphitrite had arrived at Panama, from the coast of Mexico, with $860,000 in bullion, for England. From Nicaragua, we learn that Don Trieste Camorro

ARMA BENWENN MISSIRS. CASE AND HALE.

Mr. BRIGHT, (dem.) of Ia., moved to take up the Texas debt bill.

Mr. Adams, (dem.) of Miss., suggested that the Senate take up the motion to meet at 11 o'clock, and thus give one hour, daily, additional to the consideration of these bills.

Mr. BUTLEN, (dem.) of S. C., said that foreign relations generally, and Cuba and Tehuantepec, he was sorry to say, had been made the subjects of popular debate this session. Gentlemen got these subjects up, spoke on them, and put them away, so that no one else could got a word in. If all these matters were to be discussed, it ought to be generally. A fair fight was all he wanted. These foreign relations, the Pacific Railroad, the Homestead Land bill, and others, had better be laid over for the session. He was opposed to meeting at cleven o'clock. He thought that the least that was done, and the sooner Congress went home, the better it would be for the country.

Mr. Cass (dem.) of Mich., said his resolution re-affirming the Monroe doctrine, would come up on Monday, and he hoped all who desired to speak on it would come prepared to do so, and let a vote be taken on it as soon as the debate was over. He supposed there would be some more jokes by the member from Now Hampshire, (Mr. Hale, (free goil) of N. H., said he was serious in his reference to Canada; and if the gentleman was joining with respect to Cuba, it ought to be known. (Laughter.) Mr. Cass said he thought there were many theavies in the country which were more appropriate aremas than the Senate for the habitual display of joking upon every proposition connected with the interests of the country. Such a course was unworthy the digaity of this body; but it had been connected with the interests of the country. Such a course was unworthy the digaity of this body; but it had been connected to submit to it for nearly six years. Mr. Halle thanked the Senator for his counsel but if would have been better if it had not been postponed so long. He had but a few weeks left, and could hardly prost much by the lecture. He had seem many propositions introduced, out of place, out of time, and in a manner be thought objectionable. He had great personal regard for the Senator, and if, instead of thundering forth deminiciations, he had presented his rebulks and objections under a playful sareaem or joking remark, his conduct ought to have been looked upon as kindness rather than as deserving contempt. How far his course had been approved, he was content to leave to the Senate and country.

Mr. Bright's motion was then agreed to and the Senate Mr. Bright's motion was then agreed to, and the Senate

Mr. Pearce (wbig) of Md., addressed the Senate at great length in a statistical examination of the history of the rexas debt. The bill, as proposed to be amended by him, authorizes the issue of eight and one third millions of three per cent bonds, payable in twenty years, to be paid to the creditors holding bonds of Texas secured by the pledge of revenue on imports, in proportion to their claims.

claims.

Mr. Hunner (dem.) of Va., followed in earnest opposition to the bill, contending that the United States were not legally or morally bound, under any circumstances, to pay the Texas debt, or any part of it.

Mr. Housrow (dem.) of Texas, got the floor, and the Senate adjourned.

House of Representatives. WASHINGTON, Feb. 10, 1853.

THE WARRHOUSE BILL.

Mr. SEYMOUR, (dem.) of N. Y., made an ineffectual mo-

Committee on Commerce. On motion Of Mr. Briggs, (whig,) of N.Y., the House took up and passed the Senate bill authorising the Secretary of the Treasury to issue a register to the American built steamship Albatross. THE TERRITORY OF WASHINGTON. The House proceeded to act on the bill establishing the territorial government of Washington, the question being mittee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

the bill, to change the name from Columbia to that of Washington.

Mr. Evans, (whig.) of Md., said he supposed that there was not in the whole United States on: dissenting voice against doing all honor to George Washington, but he wished, if possible, to change the name of the proposed territory, for the single reason that there are two hundred towns and counties called Washington. His object was to avoid confusion in nomenclature.

Mr. Evant, (dem.) of Mich., remarked that he did not like the name of Columbia changed, but, seeing it was the will of the majority to substitute that of Washington, he would interpose no objection.

Mr. Evans said he made the remark to be heard elsewhere. He thought it was far more proper to call the capital of the Union after the name of Washington; and, to avoid difficulties of geographical nomenclature, he trusted one of the beautiful Indian names would be given to the new Territory.

The title of the bill was then, changed to the "Territor."

The title of the bill was then changed to the "Territorial Government of Washington."

The bill was afterwards passed, by 128 yeas to 29 nays.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, on the bill organizing

THE TERRITORIAL GOVENNERT OF NEBRASKA.

Mr. HOWARD, (dem.) of Texas, opposed the bill, because, he said, the proposed territorial liraits embrace the lands of some eighteen tribes of Indians—thus violating the spirit of treaties with them, which expressly stipulated that those tribes shall not be incorporated within the limits of any State or organized Territory. Besides, this Territory ought not to be organized, because there was not population enough there. If the Territory is to be organized, it ought not to be until-after negotiations with the tribes interested, and their removal to some other place.

THE BAHWAY CONSOLIDATION MILL

was called up, when Mr. Willamas, (whig) moved to reconsider it, so as to make the bill general.

This drew out a long debate as to the point whether, as the bill is to create a new corporation out of soveral old ones it cannot be created by special act, unless the Legislature shall first declare that the object cannot be attained by a general law.

This was debated by Messrs. Williams, Conger, Ward and Van Schoonhoven.

The Senate refused to recommit, with instructions to bring in a general bill—ayes 7, noes 19—and the report of the committee was agreed to, and the bill ordered to a third reading.

canal as a channel for the commerce of this and the Western Pates. Its results have been beneficial to all concerned. Afterwards, railroads were constructed to concerned. Afterwards, railroads were constructed to concerned and the state of the country, time only could deadle, the shought they could not. But if we decide on taxalion, what railroads shall we tax? Shall it be upon those only which compate with the canals? But how shall we discriminate? He thought all of them came more or less in competition with the canals. In the first place, the most of the produce transported on them is rais-eddy our own State. The imposition of tolls would be paid by our own State. The imposition of tolls would be paid by our own State. The imposition of tolls would be paid by our own state. The imposition of tolls would be paid by our own commerce powelfully in competition with our own. The interior traific on the life railroad, from piace to place, was the chief source of revenue to that road. He believed there had not a single barrel of flour been transported from one ond of the revenue to that road. He believed there had not a single barrel of flour been transported from one ond of the road to the other. It has been said the flour taken over the Northern road has been transported at a loss, to invite other traffe. If a tax is imposed upon railroads, an equivalent benefit should be conferred on them. He would suggest how this might be done. There is now a railroad manh in this country. We hear of proposed roads in every direction—not only in this State, but throughout the country. They were withdrawing too much capital from active business. Most of them are being constructed on credit, and when their debts are to be paid, embarrassment will cause. It would secure the active of the future to restrain this manner of construct and pay for a considerable portion of the proposed would be active to the property, and appropriate the series on private property, and appropriate the interior was a propertied to private enjoyed by rai egard to the matter. On motion of Mr. D. B. TAYLOR, the House adjourned.

Probable Murder in Boston.—Early yester-terday morning a man named Thomas Roberts, teamster in the employ of Joshua Roberts, truckman, was found dead in the stable of his employer, in Hudson street. From the position in which the deceased was found—directy in rear of one of the horses—the was at first supposed that he must have been violently kicked, and then trod upon by the animal. This was rendered still more plausible by the mature of the wounds on the head. An investigation, however, yesterday afternoon, renders it nearly contain that foul play lay at the bottom of the matter, which may yet be shown to have been the most outrageous and shocking of murders. Such, at least, is the opinion of physicians who have partially made a post mortem examination. Deceased was about 35 years of age, a native of New Hampshire, and has a wife now in the country. His employer is a reintive.—Boston Bee, Feb. 8.
